Combined expertise

ISPO International will organise its 18th World Congress for both American continents in collaboration with three ISPO National Member Societies: ISPO Canada, United States and Mexico. Exhibitors and delegates will benefit from their extensive network, market knowledge and resources.

Medical devices

Mexico's medical device market is the second largest in Latin America, following Brazil. With the acquisition of new technologies and increasing health expenditure, Mexico is also the leading importer in Latin America. Of all medical devices sold in Mexico, imports amount to nearly 90% – most coming from the USA, Asia and Europe. The Mexican medical device market is sophisticated and values innovative, high-quality medical technologies. In addition to other products, prosthetics and orthopaedic devices are in high demand.

The United States is in fact the world's largest medical device market, with a size of US$ 147.7 billion (2016) and the projection to grow significantly. A very large aging population, a long track record of chronic diseases and extended access to healthcare services for previously uninsured patients increase the demand for care.

Canada's medical device market is the eighth largest in the world and amounts to US$ 6.2 billion (2015). Because it imports the majority of its medical devices (80%), its market offers plenty of opportunities for foreign manufacturers. Here too, prosthetics and orthopaedic devices are just some of the products in high demand.

The respective rates of diabetic patients are high: According to WHO, 10.4% (2016) of the population in Mexico and 9.1% (2016) in the USA suffer from diabetes. There are more than one million people living with limb loss in Mexico and about 2.1 million in the USA. Each year, approximately 185,000 patients undergo an amputation, or roughly 507 per day. (Source: Amputee Coalition) In Canada, approximately 2.3 million people (2017) above the age of 12 have diabetes (7.3%) and an estimated 200,000 Canadians are amputees.

Prosthetics and orthotics market

The main reason most patients in Mexico as well as in the USA and Canada require prostheses is due to vascular diseases.

Present your company and your products to a market that offers great demand!
